FARMERS URGED ATTEND BIG MEET

CO-OPERATIVES IN OTHER STATES ARE SAID TO BE HIGHLY SATISFIED.

(By E. C. WESTBROOK, Cotton and Tobacco Specialist, Georgia State College of Agriculture.)

Athens, Ga., Oct. 23.—For a number of years a state-wide tobacco conference has been held in the late fall at Tifton. The purpose of these meetings has been to give the tobacco farmers the latest information obtained from the elaborate set of tobacco experiments that are conducted at the Coastal Plain Experiment Station in co-operation with the Georgia State College of Agriculture and the United States Office of Tobacco Investigation. The fact that these meetings have been attended by a large number of tobacco farmers each year should be sufficient indication that growers have been getting information which has helped them to get more money out of their tobacco.

At these meetings S. H. Starr, popular director of the Tifton station, has presided. On the program we have had, Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture; J. M. Carr, tobacco specialist; and J. G. Gaines, tobacco specialist at the Tifton station.

MACK COMPLAINS WAS MISINFORMED

Archie Mack, colored, has a grievance against somebody. They have been telling Archie all these years that justice is blind. When Archie was haled into court Wednesday on a charge of burglary, he remembered what had been told him about justice, so he closed his eyes and his attorney was required to lead him to his seat. It was a fairly good case of blindness. Everybody was sorry for Archie till the witnesses began to testify and they told the court that Archie was shamming—that he was no more blind than justice. So Archie opened his eyes when the jury returned a verdict which gave him from three to five years for burglary.

REGISTER YOUTHS BANQUET FATHERS

DELIGHTFUL EVENING AT WHICH NUMBER OF FRIENDS ARE SPECIAL GUESTS.

The vocational agricultural boys of Register had an enjoyable evening with their dads and friends at the father and son banquet given in their honor at the high school building on Friday night, October 24th.

The program was made up wholly of reports and talks by the boys. Aubrey Anderson handed his report as toastmaster well and was as calm as an old timer. The reports by Woodrow Powell and Inman Atkins were very interesting. They showed that the boys had been very careful with their reports and were able to give out some concrete information on their methods of farming. These boys found that on 73 acres of cotton grown by the vocational boys they averaged 374 pounds of lint cotton. The average for the state or county is much below these figures. They also found that the cost them an average of 7.73 cents per pound. To produce this cotton, however, several boys made their cotton for less than 6 cents per pound.

After the banquet, the Adrian boys, with the help of their vocational teacher, O. L. Hayden, initiated the boys the vocational departments at Brooklet and Register into the degree of "Green Hand." This is the first of three degrees that a boy may make in the chapter of F. F. A. These boys were fine in their work. All the boys and their dads enjoyed the program and were benefited by it.

CHAIRMAN CAMP

Lawrence Camp, "Young Dick" Russell's chairman of the state executive committee, is nothing if not bold.

In his anxiety to clear himself of the just condemnation for his unfairness as presiding officer at the state convention which stole the nomination from Homer C. Parker, he has started the expressed will of the people of Georgia, Chairman Camp blandly declares that there was no protest at the action of the convention in excluding evidence and argument on the subject in dispute.

Now, Chairman Camp might have cleared himself of the false pronouncement if he had qualified his statement with these words, "Not that I recognized," Mr. Camp did not recognize the strenuous protest, but he knew it was there. He sought by every means to evade it, and was not permitted to get across his travesty till he had twice permitted the delegates to drown down the protest.

It is hard to be patient with a statement so barren of truth as Chairman Camp's that there was no protest. When the committee report was made to the effect that each side would be given thirty-five minutes in which to present evidence and argument, there went up a loud shout of dissent. Chairman Camp then called for a viva voce vote on the matter. Unable to decide by the vote, Chairman Camp called for a show of hands, and everybody in the house voted, practically two-thirds voting to exclude the hearing. The other one-third voted for a hearing—a protest loud enough to be heard and recognized by everybody except Chairman Camp.

And yet Chairman Camp expects the people of Georgia to accept his word that nobody "protested" against his ruling. We are telling Mr. Camp at this time that he should make the most of his two years' tenure of office. He is going to be turned out to grass two years hence. He deserves to be turned out immediately.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

The country newspapers of the United States have had for many years a splendid opportunity to observe the workings of government competition with private business. The federal government prints envelopes in large or small quantities with return addresses at prices made possible only by its tremendous purchasing power, which no newspaper can possibly meet.

As a result, each year newspaper plants lose hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of business which would normally come to them were it not for price-cutting competition on the part of the government which they help to support with their taxes.

A California publisher tells how the postmaster of his town wanted the post office raised to a higher class so he would receive a larger salary. To do this he went around to all the merchants and sold them a year's supply of stamped envelopes with their return address printed in the corner. In the words of the publisher, "This did not raise the efficiency of the local post office, the government lost money by paying more salary, and the local printer lost on not receiving these printing orders."

It is no wonder that a great majority of the country newspapers of the nation having felt the bite of government competition, are irrevocably opposed to "politically-owned" and operated industries.

FIVE MILES BACK

"Five miles back from our main state highways, who knows what conditions he will find?" asks Governor Roosevelt, of New York. "There the highways are poor and hazardous, essentially as in the time of our grandfathers."

This is not an exaggerated statement. In all parts of the country magnificent, fast trunk highways go from city to city, from state to state. But a few miles away farmers are attempting the impossible task of employing motor transport for their commodities and themselves on roads that are unsatisfactory even in the horse-and-wagon days. As a result, for many months of the year an impassable barrier of mud stands between them and their markets and the outside world.

Here is one of the main causes of farm depression. In the past two or three decades there has been a revolution in industry, one of whose major effects has been the motorization of transportation. Industrial prosperity has as one of its cornerstones quick, efficient and economical transportation of goods over paved highways.

PARKER DECLARES WAS DEFRAUDED

ELECTED BY THE PEOPLE, WAS CHEATED OUT OF OFFICE BY TRICKERY.

Atlanta, Oct. 24.—Adjutant General Homer C. Parker, who lost the nomination for the office of controller to William B. Harrison, incumbent, by vote of the recent state Democratic convention, tonight, said he had retired "from the race without a single scar and my sacred honor."

"Elected by the people, rejected by the politicians, I stand here tonight, betrayed, martyred and helpless," the adjutant general said.

"I am addressing myself to every honest man and woman in Georgia, at a cost of $5 for each minute I speak to you."

"I was not present at the afternoon session of the state convention held in Macon on last Friday. I was not represented by counsel. The privilege of a voice or of representation in the deliberations of that body was denied me."

"My opponent's statement that neither I nor my counsel protested his desire and plans to have your nominee for the office of controller general named by the convention is untrue."

"I did nothing but protest, as did my counsel and friends. I agreed to the theft of my nomination that you had given me and that my counsel suggested the procedure by which it should be accomplished, is too childish and absurd for me or him to deny."

"Since all the powers that are are seemingly willing to accept the nomination of certain delegates to the state convention, and finding no other avenue of escape from the inevitable, I am retiring from the race without a single scar and with my sacred honor."

Parker went into considerable detail concerning the Georgia primary law and the mandates of delegates to the state convention. "It is the law of the state," Parker said, "that no delegate or chairman or any other man or set of men have the right, under the law, to nullify your act when you cast your vote for the candidate of your choice."

If this were not true, our primary elections would be only a formality and our officers would be creatures of a convention of politicians rather than the officials of the people who nominated them."

Parker also explained the operations of the unit vote law of the state and the penalty for fraud under the law. "In depriving me of a nomination fairly and honorably won over my opponents, the politicians at the state convention have set another precedent in Georgia that threatens to overthrow and make impotent the primary laws of Georgia."

"The enforcement of the law is of far greater importance to the people of Georgia than the success of any candidate in office. The reputation of the will of the masses of the people, solemnly expressed at the ballot box must be frowned upon by all law-abiding citizens."

There is no confusion on the floor as the tobacco is weighed and graded as fast as received. A ticket goes to the office and the warehouse office fills out a draft for 75% of the commercial value of the tobacco and the farmer can cash that at any of the banks. An accurate check is kept of the tobacco markets to determine the commercial value of the various grades, and the loans are based on this value. The association has succeeded in financing the advances on the members' tobacco at a very low rate of interest.

Attractive Maps Show Correct Route

The Georgia and Florida railroad is distributing a very attractive map, showing how traffic should be routed from Northern, Eastern or Western points, also points in Virginia and the Carolinas, in order that it may reach their line at Greenwood, S. C., its northern gateway. The train service over its line, between Greenwood and points on the line, has been greatly improved and the route will no doubt be well patronized by shippers and consignees, in recognition of the extraordinary expenditure and efforts the Georgia & Florida railroad made in the construction of its extension from Augusta, Ga., to Greenwood, S. C., which was completed and opened to through traffic in June, 1929, for the dual purpose of effecting improved service to patrons located on and reached via the Georgia & Florida railroad as well as to enable the railroad to increase its earnings and to strengthen its financial position.

In commenting upon the announcement above referred to, which has reached our hands, we cannot commend too strongly the merits of this service, and the claim the management has upon this section by reason of their faith in the progress and development of the Southeast as exemplified in the investment of over three million dollars at a time when railroad extensions were practically at a standstill throughout the United States.

Olaf Gorenson, aged 72, of Minneapolis, Minn., rolled out of bed and broke his neck.

Need for additional classroom space has led to the opening of the educational building for class work in four of the nineteen major divisions of the College of Arts and Sciences. All dormitories have been renovated, and four chapter houses on New Fraternity Row have been completed and occupied.

Emory, now beginning its ninety-fourth consecutive year, has a total fall registration exceeding 1,200 students. In endowment the institution ranks among the strongest in the South.

TWO DEAD AND ONE HURT IN CAR CRASH

JAMES BEASLEY AND UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN VICTIMS AS AUTO OVERTURNS.

(Jacksonville, Fla., Times-Union.)
Two persons are dead and another is injured as the result of an automobile accident at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon about three miles out of Jacksonville on the Moncrief road.

James E. Beasley, 28, of 40 East Fifteenth street, succumbed to internal injuries half an hour later in a local hospital. The other dead person is an unidentified woman, who was instantly killed when her neck was broken. She is thought to have been about 35 years old. W. B. Ferrell of the American Bakers, sustained a broken ankle and a broken arm in addition to cuts and bruises. He is in St. Luke's Hospital and had not regained consciousness late last night.

Ferrell is said to have been driving the car which swerved from the highway on a curve while traveling at a high rate of speed. Ferrell is said to have managed to get the car back on the road, but in so doing the machine was overturned.

The men were rushed to the hospital in a passing car. The accident was investigated by Roland Thompson and Dick Barker, of the Duval County Road Patrol.

Both bodies were turned over to the Marcus Conant Company and efforts are being made to identify the dead woman.

Beasley is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Beasley, of Jacksonville; one brother, B. E. Beasley, of Jacksonville, and four sisters, Mrs. Grace Van Sickle, of Jacksonville; Mrs. I. Silvers, of Savannah, and Miss Jennie B. and Miss Winnie Beasley, at home.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC CO.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27.—Tourist trade this winter is certain to have a beneficial effect all over Georgia in the opinion of Wiley L. Moore, president of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, who has just returned from a visit to many sections of the state.

"Georgians generally are awakening to the importance of tourist business," says Mr. Moore, "and communities all over the state are sprucing up in anticipation of tourist business, which should begin within a short time."

"Thousands of visitors will come to Georgia this winter, and it is up to all of us to show them the most attractive features of our state; to interest them not only in buying as they pass through, but in stopping over and in investing in Georgia farms and Georgia industries."

"We have a wonderful opportunity right now. We must sell ourselves on Georgia and sell Georgia to the world. Let's get to work and keep working and we will all of Georgia prosper."

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27.—One of the largest contributions to the library at the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Alto has just been announced by the State Board of Health. The contribution was made by the Georgia Lodge of Masons, of Atlanta, in the shape of books valued at $758.

Time hangs rather heavily on the hands of the patients at Alto, and it was stressed by Dr. T. F. Abernethy, state commissioner of health, that good books go far toward the alleviation of the tedium with a consequent help to the physicians in charge of the institution in effecting a cure.

HENRY ROBERT LEE

Henry Lee died at his home in Lee-field Sunday morning, October 19. He had been sick several months, but had been confined to his bed only a few days. He was a native of Lee-field, the Morales wire act, and Theresia Morales' trapeze performances featured the entertainment.

Downie Brothers circus is the largest in the world that travels by motor vehicle. The motorized circus has the improvements, there is no better recipe for a summer afternoon than a visit to the Downie circus.

The show itself opened with a gigantic parade of the whole in an animated pageant of life. It was impressive and colorful, reflecting the economic glamour of circus life. Following the parade a young lady on horseback with doves seated about her sang popular hits of the day.

John White and his leaping greys, presented an act of real merit. The greynoids leaped over obstacles which were piled to an astounding height. The trick elephant acts, too, were convincing, and it is entertaining, indeed to see those awkward, clumsy creatures performing acts almost worthy of their human kin.

Joe Hodgini's riders are the real feature of the show. Good horsemanship is as easy on the eyes as in pre-Ford days, and Downie Brothers presents an excellent riding act. Hodgini is a comedy rider who does everything on a horse except frying eggs on its back. He has good assistance from the three other members in his act.

The Morales family, a Mexican troupe, presented several wire acts, without which no circus is complete. Felix Morales was featured in a headline on a tight wire from the top of the tent. Theresia Morales gave a good performance on the high trapeze.

Two high perch acts are also presented, one by Mary and Grace Enos and the other by the Larkinsons. The Larkin brothers, a novelty duo, also went over well with a furniture balancing act.

In addition, there were trained animal acts, featuring horses, pigs, goats and dogs, to round out the program.

Altogether there was a glamour and a sense of the romantic and unreal about the show. It took you out the the mad, hurried rush of everyday life into a colorful and half-fanciful world, from age back again to boyhood. Even the most sophisticated, though they may disdain to admit it, will find a certain lure and appeal about the circus which is not to be found in the monotonous routine of daily life.

Charlie Sparks, manager of the circus, was at both performances; and the show was wholly worthy of such a one as he has a reputation of presenting.
